From: "Elizabeth Alexander" <support@gmat.economist.com> [192.99.200.91]
To: ehbarak1@gmail.com
Date: 4/29/2016 5:00:13 AM UTC
Subject: It's time to take your practice exam

+1 (866) 292-0660

The Economist GMAT TUTOR

LOG IN

Dear Ehud,

It's day 2 of your GMAT Tutor trial, and you've spent a good amount of time in the course. Based on your progress, we'd like to encourage you to take your first practice exam.

Why? Well, because you've covered 10% of the course, and it's important to test what you've learned. Practice exams are an essential part of any student's study schedule. They help you get a feel for what awaits on test day and become comfortable with the testing environment. You can take one exam during your 7-day trial.

So log in today and choose Take a Simulation Test from your student dashboard. Once you're finished, you'll get a full explanation of your performance with tips on how to improve.

COMPARE PLANS

Contact Us: +1 (866) 292-0660 | support@gmat.economist.com

You received this e-mail because you opted in to receive messages from Economist GMAT Tutor. Registered in England and Wales. No.236383. VAT no: GB 340 436 876 Registered office: 25 St James's Street, London, SW1A 1HG

Copyright (C) 2015 The Economist All rights reserved.

If you do not wish to receive anymore e-mails, please unsubscribe